

VENGEANCE MARK CARVED ON VICTIM IN BARREL MURDER

Police Think Man Found Slain
Had "Squealed" on Gang of Crooks.

The body of Gaspare Candella, pick-pocket, with the throat cut and a cross carved on the chin, was found last night in a barrel in a vacant lot in Brooklyn near 8th Avenue and 48th Street.

The circumstances were precisely similar to those of the death, fifteen years ago, of Benedetto Madonia in the lower East side of Manhattan. Madonia had "squealed" concerning the operations of a counterfeit gang. Candella, the police think, was believed to have "squealed" concerning the recent murder of Gaspare Panetti No. 348 East 10th Street, who was shot in the stomach on the morning of September 25, by one of four men who intercepted him on his way home.

Detectives Mancini, De Martini and Behan, upon after the death of Panetti, began looking for Antonio Sansoni, who had disappeared from his home at No. 2149 2d Avenue, Sansoni was traced to Brooklyn, where he lived a few days at the home of Candella. Then the Candellas moved to a little hotel at No. 2328 West 17th Street, Coney Island Avenue. Sansoni went there, too, and at 6 o'clock this morning he was arrested.

The police believe Candella was killed by friends of Sansoni, who believed Candella had given information or was about to do so. The latter theory is regarded as stronger, since Candella's murder occurred not later than yesterday and Sansoni apparently believed himself safe until his arrest this morning.

Sansoni when questioned admitted he was present at the shooting of Panetti, but denied he had done it.

Candella was last seen by his wife on Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock, when he told her he would be home for supper at 7 o'clock. She said Sansoni was with him at the time.

"PEP THE BOOTBLACK" DIES
Was Official Shoe Shiner at Police Headquarters 22 Years.

"Pep, the Bootblack," known to every Police Commissioner since Theodore Roosevelt occupied the position, died today. For twenty-two years he had been the official shiner of shoes at Police Headquarters.

Pep's right name was Joseph Conroy and he lived at No. 253 Mott Street. His best known characteristic was that he "had no ears." Commissioners and other high officials of the department never interrupted conversations when he entered to shine their shoes. No secret ever got out through him.

Pep's wife and four children recently became ill with influenza. He died at night and working days, he contracted pneumonia which caused his death. A large place as a tribute to his memory.

EDITOR SENT HOME FROM FRANCE, WHO DIES SOON AFTER ARRIVAL HERE

By Sylvester Rauling.

THE Biltmore Friday Morning Musicales were started for the season yesterday auspiciously. There was a crowded audience that showed appreciation of the artists and of the programme presented in no stinted measure. Anna Case, a lovely vision to the eye, sang old folk songs and modern ballads with equal facility and charm.

Louis Graveure, whose voice now is well established, sang French and English songs with a captivating grace of voice and manner. Miesha Eiman, the violinist, showed again that, morning or night, his tone is impeccable and his facility that of a master player.

"Samson et Dalila" will start the opera season at the Metropolitan Opera House next Monday night, with Caruso and Louise Homer in the name parts. "Aida" on Wednesday, "The Daughter of the Regiment" on Thursday, "La Forza del Destino" on Friday, "Thais" at the Saturday matinee and "Cavalleria" and "Pagliacci" in double bill, for a popular priced programme, on Saturday night, complete the week's bills.

The Society of American Singers, now well advanced in the second month of its season of opera comique at the Park Theatre, has found its presentation of Gilbert and Sullivan's operas so popular that on next Thursday evening "Pinafore" will be revived to supplement the performance of "The Mikado" and "The Pirates of Penzance."

Leo Ornstein, uncommon in all that he does, will give two piano recitals at Aeolian Hall next week, the first on Tuesday afternoon and the second on Saturday afternoon.

Mutja Niessen-Stone, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will give a song recital at Aeolian Hall next Saturday evening.

Mrs. Robert Bacon, the head of a committee of New York women, has arranged an entertainment at the Hippodrome to-morrow afternoon—a Christmas benefit for the 153d Field Artillery. The brigade, part of the 77th Division, "New York's Own," consists of the 304th, 305th, 306th Field Artillery and the 302d Ammunition Train, all of whom are now on the firing line in France. Schumann, Heine, Janora, Sparkes, Riccardo Martin, David Blapham, Sacha Jacobson, Sgt. Irving Berlin and a company of 250 soldiers of the 23d Infantry and a battalion from Governors Island will take part.
